How to organise and deliver healthcare: insights from improvement studies

Abstract:

Caring for a growing and ageing population has placed enormous pressure on healthcare systems around the world. Dr Rebecca Simmons will explore how improvement studies – a relatively new discipline – uses a multidisciplinary approach to provide evidence for how to organise and deliver healthcare. Drawing on examples from the UK and Scandinavia, and introducing The Healthcare Improvement Studies (THIS) Institute, the lecture will provide novel insights into improving healthcare in the 21st century
